Harmonizing Dental and Facial Esthetics

In the July 2007 issue of AGD Impact Drs. Patthoff and Ozar taught us that "...the dentist's work [must] conform[s] to the dental profession's standards of teeth that are properly shaped and colored within a complete dentition and balanced with gingival and facial features." That says a proverbial "mouth full". Most of us didn't learn how to harmonize dental, gingival and facial features in Dental School—most dental students today still do not learn how to do this.

This program is designed to demonstrate examination, diagnosis and treatment planning techniques that predictably produce superior Dento-Facial Esthetic Harmony—not "by accident, once in awhile" but by design nearly every time. You will learn:

- Why dentists are no longer in the "tooth business" but rather in the "Face Business" and why that is good for patients and dentists.
- Some of the important dental publications that establish our methodology.
- The 7 Habits of Highly Esthetic Dentists: A Dental Esthetic Check List.
- The use of the Esthetic Gauges and the Facial Plane Relator.

Dr. Stephen Liu

Dr. Liu was Assistant Professor/Clinician Educator of Restorative Dentistry in the Department of Preventive and Restorative Sciences at The University of Pennsylvania and the Director of the Implant Dentistry course. Now he is the Course Director of Aesthetic Restoration and Implant Dentistry in the academic department of the University of Pennsylvania. He was also the recipient of the 2001, 2002, and 2004 Joseph L.T. Appleton Award for excellence in clinical instruction.

Dr. Liu conducts his Study Club meetings usually every other month. Topics vary, and the meetings are a great place to meet and talk with other local dentists.
